

A Tale Of Two Cities

Lyric by: Martin H. Samuel you've got New York on your face L.A. in your eyes you wanna leave this snowy scene for smoggy western skies from the Big Apple in your hand to the stars at your feet and your name up in lights to down on the street

it's a tale of two cities
often told but true
with nothing to choose between the two

New York in your hair L.A. on your mind will you forget these autumn leaves on Hollywood and Vine

Manhattan on your lips feel the taste of Mexico with Cuervo in your glass when the Santa Anas blow

wave goodbye to Wall Street a fond farewell to Fifth Avenue say hello to the rhythm of the blues

it's tale of two cities

it's a tale of two cities ...
